

AT THE EDGE

TAKING EDUCATION EVEN HIGHER

Alumni like Second Lieutenant Mateusz Borek '13, a mechanical engineering graduate, are taking their education to a higher level with a commission earned through the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program offered and hosted at NJIT.

Students who qualify for NJIT's AFROTC Detachment complete their degrees without an active-duty obligation while in college. The educational experience these men and women have is enhanced with courses in the Aerospace Studies Department of the College of Science and Liberal Arts, and leadership and physical-fitness training.

Courses are also open to NJIT students not formally enrolled in the AFROTC program.

Graduates commissioned as a second lieutenant are well-prepared for a promising future in the Air Force and civilian life. It's a future that spans challenging and rewarding opportunities in virtually every technical and managerial field – and which can literally take some AFROTC alumni to new heights.

For more information:
973-596-3626,
afrotc490@njit.edu, or on the web at www.njit.edu/rotc

Second Lieutenant Mateusz Borek '13 on the flight line with a T-6 primary trainer.